

National and local cultural heritage in Poland

Our region - Kujawy

European Commission

Poland is divided into many regions. We live in a region called Kujawy therefore we often learn about our local traditions like dance, songs or symbols. What is more, you can find many workshops in our main library or in Torun for example in a gingerbread museum. To make it even more interesting we have many quizzes concerning our town and the region.

Our school library also takes care of our regional traditions by organising many exhibitions and meetings devoted to local customs, sometimes we even cooperate with public libraries.

Auskaukalis

During library club, students visited archeological exhibition called Askaukalis. It was devoted to archeological inventions that can be found in Inowrocław and in its nearby area. Their guide was actually a mother of our pupil that is a professional archeologist.

Our students with their Polish teacher prepared a small performance for younger pupils of a traditional custom celebrated in Kujawy region. It is always on the last day of Carnival (Tuesday before Ash Wednesday) and it is called Koza (goat in English). Lessons like that can be not only a great example of celebrating local customs but also a good lesson of cooperation between students, teachers and parents.

Independence Day

European Commission

Every year on the 11th of November we celebrate The Independence Day. That is why our students prepare a small performance just to remind of that important event to Poland. They usually do it in two ways - one for smaller pupils and another for the older ones because we want it to be understood for each pupil. Moreover, we learn national songs and later we sing them together.

Independence Day

Although we work online we always maintain our tradition of singing our national anthem together because of such an important event to every Polish man. Moreover, we sing it at 11.11 sharp as a symbol of a date of Independence Day (11th November)

Our youngest pupils visited local workshops where they could get to know how to make Christmas ornaments using old traditional methods. Children learnt how to make glass balls and decorate them using many different techniques.

Interesting people

European

It is our tradition to invite interesting guests to our school who share their passions with our students. They often tell many fascinating stories about Inowrocław and its area. So far we could meet Mrs Lidka - a librarian and an Inowrocław tourist guide. Next one was Mrs Dorota - an archeologist and animator of local culture. The last one was Mr Paweł - an artist who paints the landscape of Kujawy using different art techniques.
